

GasLine Guidance on Comments

Comments are appreciated, but reviewed prior to posting. A name and an e-mail address must accompany comments. Comments will appear once they have been deemed acceptable and are posted within a reasonable time frame. The author will usually receive a response from me after approval. Rejected comments will not appear, and I reserve the right not to reply to rejected authors.

I do reserve the right to edit any spelling or grammatical errors in the comments should I see fit or if you request this. Any changes in text I make will be bracketed and will still reflect the original intention of the commenter.

Civility is enforced through either outright rejection (if there is no way to salvage the comment or if there is no content in the comment) or changes in text (removing unacceptable words).

-Maura D. Garvey
CryoGas International